AMENDMENTS TO THE DESCRIPTION:

Please insert a new paragraph between original Paragraph [0038] and Paragraph [0039]:

In an embodiment, a computer printing system for xerographic printing includes a computer operating in a Windows® 2000 environment with an augmented Windows® 2000 printing architecture, wherein the augmented Windows® 2000 printing architecture further includes; a standard print driver with enhancements for collecting a plurality of print job attributes when a print job is initiated; a standard print spooler with enhancements for controlling and managing the processing of the print job, and for directing the print job to a target device; and an electrophotographic printer serving as the target device for receiving the print job, wherein the electrophotographic printer further includes an imaging and exposing station; a photoreceptor; a developing station; a transferring station; and a fusing station.